PRESIDENTIAL BIRTHDAY | 80TH AIRBORNE

U.S. ARMY GOLDENKNIGHTS/AP

DOWN TO EARTH: Former President George H.W. Bush celebrates his 80th birthday Sunday with a 13,000-foot parachute jump over his presidential library in Texas. Cloudy weather dashed Bush's hopes of a solo dive, but he said he hoped his tandem jump showed that "at 80 years old, you've still got a life."

Al Qaeda's Saudi Offensive

Capture of American part of new tactic against royal family

RIYADH, SAUDI ARABIA | With the kidnapping of an American and threats to inflict on him the same degrading punishments seen at Iraq's U.S.-run Abu Ghraib prison, suspected al Qaeda terrorists appear to have unleashed a new tactic in their violent drive against Saudi Arabia's rulers.

Saudi authorities searched Sunday for Paul M. Johnson, an American who was apparently abducted by militants who also claimed responsibility for gunning down another American in Riyadh the day before.

It was the third killing of a Westerner in the Saudi capital in a week, part of a stepped-up campaign aimed at driving out foreigners and sabotaging the oil sector, key to the Saudi economy and basis of the rule by the kingdom's royal family.

The U.S. Embassy warned that the attacks appeared to follow extensive surveillance of the two Americans slain over the past week. Kenneth Scroggs was shot in the back as he parked in the garage at his home on Saturday. Last Tuesday, Robert Jacobs was also killed in his parking garage.

bin Laden, often rails against Saudi Arabia's rulers for their close links to the United States.

"The Saudis know that this is an enemy that is coming after them. The killing of foreigners ... is a direct attack against the Saudi regime," Secretary of State Colin Powell said on ABC's "This Week."

Powell said Saudi leaders are mobilizing all resources against militants but added, "I think that there is more that they can do."

RIOTS | Meal Melee Some 300 teenagers in Woodbury, N.Y., waged a food fight in their school cafeteria so fierce that educators had to call police to help them restore order. The students at Monroe-Woodbury High School had ignored school officials' attempts to end the disturbance. Nine police cruisers from three agencies, including state police, responded to the call, the Times Herald Record of Middletown reported. (AP) EyeOpeners | Page 2

VISITORS Space Oddity

Brenda Archer was enjoying a normal Saturday morning around her house in Auckland, New Zealand — until a meteorite crashed through her ceiling. The nearly three-pound rock entered the house with a crash, and flopped down on the Archer family's living-room couch. Researchers at Auckland University say the rock is likely 4 billion years old. "I don't know what to make of it," Archer told New Zealand's One News. "I'm just glad no one was sitting on the couch because they just would have got absolutely crowned." (EXPRESS)

SIGHTINGS Sasquatch Out

It was big and hairy, but it wasn't a bear. Marion Sheldon and Gus Jules are convinced they saw Big Foot along the Alaska Highway near Whitehorse in the Yukon Territory, Canada. The men say at first they thought they saw a man standing by the side of the road. They turned their vehicle around, thinking it was someone in need of a ride. But as they approached, they say the creature crossed the road in a couple of big steps and disappeared in the bush. (AP)

LINGUISTICS Sticking Point

A Staten Island, N.Y., woman was arrested Thursday after taking some playful lunchtime banter with her boyfriend a little too far. William Sohmer, 48, said he and his girlfriend, Nora Dattilo, 39, were just joking around when things escalated out of control. "She stuck a fork in me and said, 'You're done,'" Sohmer told the Staten Island Advance. He refused to provide further details. "She's a good girl and we were just fooling around," he said. She has been charged with second-degree assault. (EXPRESS)

MYSTERIES Down the Drain

To folks around Wildwood, Mo., it is nothing but freaky: An entire 23-acre lake vanished in a matter of days, as if someone pulled the plug on a bathtub. Lake Chesterfield went down a sinkhole last week, leaving homeowners in this affluent St. Louis suburb wondering if their property values disappeared along

KIDS THESE DAYS Safety First

Parents in a Long Island, N.Y., school district received prank letters on official-looking stationery offering students a "Protection Package" of condoms and lubricants for the senior prom. Mitchell Ross, principal of Newfield High, said the school has narrowed down the list of culprits and will get the police involved in the investigation. The letters arrived in the mail last week and offered various birth control items and also said rooms would be available for interested students at the hotel where the prom will be held June 23. with their lakeside views. What once was an oasis for waterfowl and sailboats was nothing but a muddy, crackled pit outlined by rotting fish. Because the manmade lake is private property, the subdivision's residents will have to cover the cost of fixing it, probably through special property assessments. Resident George English expects it to cost $1,000 a household. (AP)

Escalating Attacks Expected in Iraq

Rice, Powell warn that Iraqi leaders face more threats in weeks ahead

WASHINGTON | Iraqi leaders will face increasing threats of violence as the June 30 transfer of political power nears, Bush administration officials said Sunday after two assassinations in Baghdad.

Insurgents and Saddam's loyalists are stepping up efforts "to shake the will" of the new government, the U.S.-led coalition and the Iraqi people, Bush's national security adviser said.

"They're not going to succeed," Condoleezza Rice told CNN's "Late Edition."

"And indeed, there will continue to be violence, because these are people who have no future in a free Iraq," Rice said.

Secretary of State Colin Powell said "very brave and bold and courageous Iraqi leaders have stepped forward into positions of responsibility, and these murderers are trying to assassinate them, to undercut this new government."

Even with U.S. troops and private contractors aiding Iraqi security forces, "It's going to be a dangerous period," Powell told "Fox News Sunday."

The United States hopes that the establishment of a sovereign Iraqi government will undercut the insurgency, allowing security to improve so that balloting for an elected administration can be held in January.

Powell said "the real solution to the security problem" is for Iraqi forces to be trained quickly. The United States is working diligently to accomplish that, he said.

About 150,000 U.S. and other coalition troops will remain in Iraq after June 30 to help with security, under a U.N. resolution approved last week.

Gas Prices See First Drop This Year

LOS ANGELES | A boost in gasoline production and a dip in oil prices have led to the first nationwide drop this year in gas prices at the pump, an industry analyst said Sunday.

The weighted national average price for all three grades of gasoline was $2.04 per gallon on Friday after rising more than 59 cents since mid-December, said

Trilby Lundberg, who publishes the biweekly Lundberg Survey, which regularly polls nearly 8,000 gas stations across the United States.

The average price for all grades on the last survey in May was slightly above $2.10 a gallon.

The drop at the pump also reflects an effort by refiners to maximize their gasoline production and increase supply.

The national weighted average price of a gallon of gasoline on Friday, including taxes, was about $2.01 for regular, $2.11 for midgrade and $2.20 for premium.

Tulsa, Okla., had the lowest average price of any city, with self-serve regular at about $1.75. The highest prices were in the San Francisco Bay area, at $2.32, Lundberg said.

Churches Face Conversion

Condos built in former Boston parishes could be the next hot trend

BOSTON | When St. Peter and Paul church was sold to a developer, there was a lot of resistance in South Boston. Not only was the beloved church closing, it was being turned into something that was anathema to the working-class neighborhood: luxury condominiums.

As the Boston Archdiocese prepares to put 60 churches up for sale, developers and real estate brokers predict they will be converted into condos because the market is hot for trendy, distinctive real estate.

"They'll sell in a heartbeat, overnight, in 10 minutes," said Peter LaBranche, a real estate agent in Newton. Eric Reenstierna, an appraiser who specializes in church properties, said converting them into living space is often difficult and expensive because of the desire to preserve unusual architectural details.

But that aversion isn't overwhelming, and the draw of stained glass, stonework and moldings can translate into pricey apartments, Reenstierna said.

The Rev. Christopher Coyne, a spokesman for the archdiocese, said there will be open bidding for the properties but the archdiocese will try to find buyers who plan to convert the churches to uses consistent with the church's mission.

At St. Peter and Paul, the one- to three-bedroom condos are priced from $300,000 for the smallest one-bedroom unit to $1.2 million for a penthouse with the bell tower of the church. DENISE LAVOIE (AP)

Students Doubt Their Voting Power

SEASIDE, CALIF. | Most college students doubt that voting in presidential elections will make big changes in American society, according to a nationwide survey.

Only 35 percent of the students surveyed said presidential voting will create "a lot of change," compared to 47 percent who thought so in March 2001, according to the poll conducted for the Leon and Sylvia Panetta Institute, a public-policy think tank at the California State University, Monterey Bay.

The survey also found that only 19 percent of American college students believe that politics is "very relevant" to their lives, and 43 percent believe that politics has little or no relevance.

The poll consisted of 800 interviews with students at four-year colleges around the country. (AP)

Explorers Unearth 5,000-Year-Old Cemetery in Egypt

CAIRO, EGYPT | Archaeologists have unearthed a 5,000-year-old necropolis with 20 well-preserved tombs in a poor neighborhood just outside Cairo, Egyptian authorities announced Sunday.

The site in the suburb of Helwan is a mixture of small, plain tombs with larger ones meant for the middle and upper classes that contain alabaster, limestone, clay and copper pots and pans, the statement said.

The necropolis also contains a limestone relief with early uses of hieroglyphic texts, said Christian Kohler, head of the Australian team of archaeologists. She was quoted in the statement from Egypt's Supreme Council of Antiquities.

Two large limestone tombs at the site date to the Old Kingdom, 2575-2134 B.C. and contain a collection of small chapels and niches. (AP)

Car Bomb in Iraq Kills 12; Official Slain

Insurgents stepping up campaign against Iraq's new leadership

BAGHDAD | A suicide car-bomber killed a dozen people Sunday near a U.S. garrison in Baghdad, the 15th car-bombing in Iraq this month. Elsewhere in the capital, gunmen assassinated a senior Education Ministry official.

Kamal al-Jarah, 63, the Education Ministry official in charge of contacts with foreign governments and the United Nations, was fatally shot early Sunday outside his home in the city's Ghazaliya district, a predominantly Sunni Muslim neighborhood where support for Saddam Hussein had been strong.

Al-Jarah's death occurred one day after Iraq's deputy foreign minister, Bassam Salih Kubba, was mortally wounded in another Sunni neighborhood while driving to work. The Foreign Ministry blamed Saddam loyalists for the killing.

In Washington, Secretary of State Colin Powell said U.S. forces would do "everything we can to try to defeat these murderers." However, Powell told "Fox News Sunday" that "it's hard to protect an entire government."

The suicide attack near the U.S. Army's Camp Cuervo in eastern Baghdad left 12 dead, including four policemen, officials said, but there were no American casualties.

The upsurge in violence in Baghdad occurred as fighting broke out Sunday around the Taji air base on the northern edge of the city. An American soldier was killed and two others were wounded during an ambush north of Taji, the command said. One assailant also was killed.

A U.S. Army OH-58 helicopter crashed near Taji later Sunday, but the two-member crew survived "in good condition," the U.S. command said. The cause of the crash and whether it was related to the fighting was unclear, but the U.S. command said there was no indication the aircraft was shot down.

Bad air out. Renewable energy in.

Clean air clears the way for summer fun! D.C. can clean the air by making the switch to renewable energy.

It's a slam dunk.

Clean energy will:

Reduce Code Purple and Red Days:

During these days, air quality exceeds EPA's health-based standards, making it unsafe to enjoy the outdoors.

Improve the Health of District Residents:

Clean energy cleans our air and protects our health, especially that of young children and the elderly. Particles from power plants send over 3,700 people to the emergency room each year and are responsible for almost 20,000 asthma attacks in the D.C. metropolitan area each year.*

Reduce energy bills: Renewable energy is both feasible and affordable. It moves us towards decreased reliance on foreign fossil fuels and would help stabilize spiking natural gas prices.

Create Jobs: Clean energy production is more labor intensive than traditional energy production. Wind and solar power each provide 40 percent more jobs per dollar than does coal.

Key Terror Figure Held In Pakistan

ISLAMABAD, PAKISTAN | Pakistani authorities have arrested 10 suspected al Qaeda members, including a nephew of detained terror mastermind Khalid Shaikh Mohammed, who has been in U.S. custody the past year, Interior Minister Faisal Saleh Hayat said Sunday.

The men were arrested over the weekend in separate raids in the southern port city of Karachi, Hayat said. The Pakistani military has been engaged in four days of fierce fighting in the area that has left more than 50 suspected militants and 17 security forces dead.

Among those arrested was Masrab Arochi, a nephew of former al Qaeda No. 3 Mohammed, who was captured in March 2003 near Islamabad. Arochi had a $1 million bounty on his head, Hayat said, and is believed to have been behind several attacks in Pakistan.

"It is a major breakthrough," Hayat said. "We have made a big dent in the al Qaeda network." (AP)

Milosevic Loyalist To Face Runoff for Serbian Presidency

BELGRADE, SERBIA-MONTENEGRO | A nationalist supporter of ousted President Slobodan Milosevic took the lead in Serbia's presidential election Sunday, but faced a runoff with a pro-Western party leader, according to unofficial preliminary results.

The results, released by the Center for Free Elections and Democracy, or CESID — a non-government group whose early counts have proven reliable in the past — put Tomislav Nikolic of the Serbian Radical Party in the lead with 30.7 percent of the votes cast, followed by Boris Tadic of the reformist Democratic Party with 27.4 percent.

Since no candidate garnered more than 50 percent of the vote, the two leading contenders will compete in a runoff to be held on June 27, said Zoran Lucic of CESID. (AP)

Voters Deal Blow to European Leaders

French, German ruling parties fall behind in Parliament elections

LONDON | Voters across Europe punished their leaders for getting involved in Iraq — but also turned on German Chancellor Gerhard Schroeder and French President Jacques Chirac, leading opponents of the war, projections showed.

Many governments had a hard time in the 25-nation vote for the European Parliament, which ended Sunday. Among the few that did well were Spain's Socialists, who recently withdrew troops from Iraq. The Socialists — surprise victors in March elections after a massive terrorist attack — won in Spain.

Overall, center-right parties won, taking between 247 and 277 seats in the 732-member body, according to projections. The center-left is forecast to win 189 to 209 seats.

Jean-Marie Le Pen, leader of the extreme right National Front Party in France, and his daughter Marine leave their polling booths in St. Cloud on Sunday. Le Pen's party won an estimated 10 percent of the French vote for European Parliament.

According to early projections, British Prime Minister Tony Blair's Labour Party fared badly in the parliamentary vote. The results were widely perceived as a rebuke for Blair's support for the Iraq war.

But the picture was made more complex by results in Germany and France. Schroeder's Social Democrats took a bashing, with their share of the German vote falling to 21.4 percent, their worst performance since World War II, exit polls indicated. Schroeder's popularity has waned over high unemployment and his drive to trim social programs.

Chirac's conservative Union for a Popular Movement, with about 16.5 percent of the vote, finished behind the Socialist Party, which garnered 30 percent of ballots cast, according to the Sofres polling firm. Polls indicated that many voters were angry about Chirac's reforms of pensions and other social programs.

For some, the most remarkable outcome was the level of participation: the 44.6 percent turnout was the lowest ever in a European Parliament election, and just 28.7 percent voted in the 10 newest states. (AP)

Oken Case Stirs Execution Debate

Murderer scheduled to die this week by lethal injection in Md.

BALTIMORE | If convicted murderer and rapist Steven Oken dies by lethal injection as scheduled this week, he will be the first person executed in Maryland since the state put a moratorium on capital punishment in 2002 to study the death penalty.

Raymond Paternoster, the author of the state-commissioned study, said he doesn't think the state has addressed the problems the study found.

The 2003 study said that prosecutors are more likely to seek the death penalty for blacks who murder whites. Since 1923, 83 people have been executed in Maryland; 64 were black, and 19 were white.

But relatives of Dawn Garvin, one of three women murdered by Oken in 1987, say they hope they are finally nearing the end of a 17-year quest for justice. Garvin's brother, Fred Romano, said that the family is "counting down the days."

Michael Lawlor, one of Oken's attorneys, said a petition seeking a stay of execution would be filed with the Supreme Court Sunday evening. BRIAN WITTE (AP)

? SINCE YOU ASKED

Q I was glad to learn about the upcoming SmarTrip card automation for paying parking fees at Metro lots. However, how will I get a receipt if all exits will be automated? Will Metro send me a year-end summary for tax purposes?

A Even if you already use a SmarTrip card to pay for parking, you can request a copy of your transactions, said Metro spokeswoman Lisa Farbstein. Contact Metro's SmarTrip help line at 202-962-5719, or e-mail smartrip@wmata.com. You'll need your card's identification number.

Once the new rules for payment begin Monday, June 28, at all Metro parking lots, parking attendants — yes, actual humans! — will be stationed in parking areas and you can request a receipt from them, according to Metro's Web site. Receipts will show the date, location and the parking fee.

Receipts also will be available online later this year, according to the site. DANNY FREEDMAN (EXPRESS)

ANNOUNCING

Hornung Sacked From Notre Dame Football Games

Hall of Famer Paul Hornung said he won't return to Notre Dame football radio broadcasts this season because of a flap over his comments that the school should lower its academic standards to recruit black athletes. "The reason I'm not going to be on the air for my last year is because Notre Dame does not want me there," Hornung told the South Bend Tribune. Associate athletic director John Heisler said the final decision was up to Westwood One Radio, which broadcasts the games. (AP)

U.S. Plans Shift to Lessen Burden of Proof in Drug Cases

In a shift that could significantly hurt Olympic champion Marion Jones and other athletes under investigation for possible drug violations, the U.S. Anti-Doping Agency plans to start using a less-stringent burden of proof in doping cases. The Associated Press obtained a copy of a USADA memorandum calling for such a change, as well as a second USADA memorandum saying hearsay evidence would be allowed in the arbitration of doping cases. Mystics Win Home Game, Sort OfHoldsclaw's jump shot lifts Washington to victory in College Park

WNBA | Chamique Holdsclaw hit a jumper with 2.4 seconds remaining to give the Washington Mystics their first home victory of the season, a 62-60 win over the New York Liberty on Sunday.

The home fans were somewhat deprived, however, as the game was played at the University of Maryland's Comcast Center to accommodate a Madonna concert Sunday night at MCI Center, the Mystics' usual home.

After Holdsclaw's winning shot, Stacey Dales-Schuman blocked a shot by Vickie Johnson as the final horn sounded to secure Washington's first home win over New York since June 4, 2000.

Chasity Melvin led the Mystics with 15 points, seven rebounds and two blocks. Holdsclaw finished with 14 points and 14 rebounds.

The Mystics, who got at least one rebound from everyone who played, outrebounded the Liberty, 40-26.

Becky Hammon and Crystal Robinson each scored 12 points for New York. (AP)

GIANT HIT: Barry Bonds blasted a two-run home run off of Sidney Ponson in the Giants 7-3 win over Baltimore on Sunday.

BASEBALL | Sidney Ponson wanted an opportunity to pitch to Barry Bonds, and the Baltimore Orioles' right-hander got his wish.

It was no coincidence Ponson also lost his fifth-straight start.

Bonds hit his 676th homer and drove in three runs, leading the San Francisco Giants to a 7-3 victory Sunday.

Bonds's home run gave him 500 with San Francisco, making the Giants' franchise the first in baseball history to have three players hit 500 with the club. Willie Mays had 646 and Mel Ott hit 511.

Pedro Feliz had three hits for the Giants, who took two of three to win their sixth series in the last eight.

Pitcher Jerome Williams (6-4) allowed three runs and six hits in 7 1/3 innings for San Francisco. It wasn't a gem; he issued four walks, hit three batters and yielded solo homers to Javy Lopez and B.J. Surhoff.

Ponson (3-8) gave up a career-high 13 hits and six runs in 6 2/3 innings, remaining winless since May 16. DAVID GINSBURG (AP)

A Tale of 2 Rounds, but Sorenstam Wins Title

WOMEN'S GOLF | Annika Sorenstam blew away the field over the first 18 holes with a 7-under 64 to build a six-shot lead Sunday, then survived a four-hole meltdown and a late charge by Shi Hyun Ahn to win the LPGA Championship for the second straight year.

A bogey from the bunker on the final hole gave her a 1-over 72, only her second round over par this year and the same final-round score she had a year ago.

All that mattered was the trophy waiting for her.

Sorenstam joined Mickey Wright as the only player to successfully defend in three majors. Wright won all four majors back-to-back, and Sorenstam could match that with a victory later this year in the Women's British Open.

Her seventh major championship, and fourth victory this year, wasn't secure until Sorenstam missed the 16th fairway so far left that she played down the 11th fairway.

With a blind shot from 94 yards over the trees, she hit wedge into 3 feet for a birdie that allowed her to breathe easy the final two holes.

Johnson Sets Pace At Pocono

AUTO RACING | Jimmie Johnson used a near-flawless performance to overcome a NASCAR mistake, drawing closer to the points lead with a win under caution Sunday at Pocono Raceway.

Johnson controlled most of the Pocono 500 for his second win in three weeks and third this year. He's led 820 miles in the last three races and has two more seconds in his last five.

But he was almost a victim of NASCAR's ever-changing, and often confusing, rules.

The pit road official opened the service lane one lap too early during a late caution period. As a result, Johnson, the leader, was unable to pit while most of the cars behind him did. He had to pit later and it cost him the front spot on the restart.

Johnson, though, raced his way back to the front, then built on his lead on several restarts on the 2 1/2-mile triangular track. (AP)

No Stopping Schumacher

AUTO RACING | Michael Schumacher continued his domination of Formula One when he won the Canadian Grand Prix in Montreal for the third straight year and seventh time in 11 years on Sunday.

He's the first driver to win the same grand prix seven times.

For the second year in a row, Schumacher crossed the finish line just ahead of younger brother Ralf's Williams-BMW. Michael's Ferrari teammate, Rubens Barrichello, wound up third after late-race brake problems ended a strong challenge to the leader.

Michael Schumacher started from a season-worst sixth place on the grid, but used a two-pit stop strategy to perfection, putting him in the lead for good on the 48th of 70 laps on the 2.7-mile Circuit Gilles Villeneuve.

The six-time world champion won for the seventh time in eight races this year, and added to his own all-time record with his 77th F1 win. MIKE HARRIS (AP)

Teenage Worker Woes

Youth employment is down — especially for low-income teens

TEEN JOBS | It's a hard truth that has only gotten harder in this economy: The less education you have, the more difficult it is to get a job. And competition for lower-paying jobs has meant that teens who want to work can't find jobs, whether full-time or just for the summer.

A recent study released by the Center for Labor Market Studies at Boston's Northeastern University put the teen employment rate at 36.8 percent, the lowest since 1948.

Erica Gomez, 18, learns algebra from Chris Lynch at Jobs for Youth program.

"Teenagers are at the end of the hiring queue," said Andrew Sum, the center's director, who noted that jobs that traditionally have gone to young people are often being taken by older unemployed adults — from those who've been laid off to retirees who are re-entering the job market to supplement their pensions.

There are signs of hope. Those who track employment predict the summer job market will be a bit better for teens than last year. But, Sum cautioned, a true turnaround in the jobs market can take years — especially for teens and even more so for minorities from low-income families.

Last summer, Sum said more than 60 percent of white teens from upper-income families got jobs, while only 18 percent of low-income black teens found work.

Before enrolling in the GED class at a nonprofit called Jobs for Youth, Chicago teen Erica Gomez was rejected from countless jobs because she lacked a high-school diploma.

Chris Lynch — who teaches Gomez at Jobs for Youth — said the need for a high school diploma or, at the very least, the equivalent has never been greater. "So I'm just putting a little urge out there," he told a class recently, "Show up!"

Forced to Be Workaholics

STRESS | As the productivity of U.S. workers has soared in recent years, many employees feel the amount of work they're doing is becoming onerous, according to a phone survey of more than 2,600 people conducted by Randstad North America, a staffing firm.

Sixty percent said they're fine with their hours and overtime, but less than half (47 percent) said they're OK with the amount of work employers expect them to handle.

In addition, 80 percent of employees surveyed said companies are expecting too few workers to handle too much work.

Belly of the Beasties

The Beastie Boys give sentimental props to New York's boroughs

THE WAIT IS OVER | Long breaks between records are nothing new for the Beastie Boys: They took four years between 1994's "Ill Communication" and their triple-platinum follow-up, "Hello Nasty."

But they are willing to admit that the six years between "Nasty" and "To the 5 Boroughs," out June 15, would have been even longer if they had had their way.

"Because of the way we choose to work and because we work in our own studio, we could really go on forever," said Beastie Michael Diamond (known professionally as Mike D).

Adam Horovitz (Ad-Rock) and Adam Yauch (MCA) round out the group. If the first single "Ch-Check It Out" is any indication, there's a demand for the 15-track set.

"To the 5 Boroughs" is loaded with political commentary, including calls to vote President Bush out of office ("That's It That's All") and criticism of U.S. foreign policy ("Time to Build").

It also pays homage to the trio's New York surroundings, best evidenced in "An Open Letter to NYC." Above a chopped-up sample of the Dead Boys' "Sonic Reducer," the group finds solace in the city's post-Sept. 11 resiliency: "Since 911 we're still livin'/and lovin' life we've been given/ain't nothing gonna take that away from us/we're lookin' pretty and gritty 'cause in the city we trust."

TOOK YOU LONG ENOUGH: The Beastie Boys are back with a love letter to their city, some goofball humor and political advice.

But the Beasties don't skimp on their trademark goofball humor. They littered the album with references to such pop-culture figures as Fred Sanford, the Keebler Elves, Ron Popeil, Herman Munster, Jabba the Hut and Foghorn Leghorn.

"Seventy percent of the album or more is basically us just trying to entertain each other and have a good time," Mike D said.

To emphasize the straight-ahead hip-hop sound of "Boroughs," the Beasties plan to forgo live instrumentation and tour simply with DJ Mix Master Mike.

"One of the things we've talked about is actually not waiting so long until we record the next record, because we did a lot more songs than we wound up using," added Mike D. "Of course, give it a year."

Nice Quirk: David Sedaris Reading

Essayist, humorist and serial expat David Sedaris reads from his latest collected memories of humiliations large and small, "Dress Your Children in Corduroy and Denim." This is the tome that will put him over the edge from being a god among quirks and urbanites to a mainstream star of daunting untouchability, so see him now.

Is It Cold in Here? Decembrists at 9:30

Brrrr. It's going to be a chilly night in summer at the 9:30 Club tonight, what with literate, self-conscious, smarty-pants Oregonians The Decembrists headlining and the frosty Long Winter opening. Bring a scarf.

9:30 Club, 815 V St., NW; 7:30 p.m., $12, 202-265-0930. (U St.-Cardozo)

The Decembrists are sorry they didn't dress up, but they're glad to be here.

On Her Way: Rachael Yamagata

She has a big, gorgeous voice and lyrics that sound like the result of a heart that pieced itself back together after a nasty smash — all phantoms of feeling and ghosts of thoughts. Rachael Yamagata is adult-alternative rock's singer-songwriter to watch.

Iota, 2832 Wilson Blvd., Arlington; with Ray Lamontagne, 8:30 p.m., $10; 703-522-8340. (Clarendon)

PROG-MEXICAN: Past and future, folk and opera collide in Downs's music.

Americas the Beautiful

MUSIC | Leave it to a bicultural, multilingual Mexican American, raised in Oaxaca and Minnesota, to create one of the most original and progressive works of Mexican music. Lila Downs offers a fresh and modern document that joyfully reveals the rich well of inspiration.

In her fourth album, "One Blood/Una Sangre" (Narada; in stores tomorrow), Downs moves far beyond her devotion to indigenous traditions, achieving a stunning breadth of styles.

By borrowing instruments and musicians from various countries, Downs blasts through musical borders as she does through octaves with her husky, opera-trained voice.

Much of the album's excitement arises from her band's radical revision of Mexican standards, revealing new meanings in songs that have become trite stereotypes.

The suite-like arrangement of "La Bamba," a song that alludes to the U.S. invasion of Veracruz in 1914, invokes Mexico's African roots with layers of percussion and Afro-pop guitar. And Downs's eerie, hallucinogenic rendition of "La Cucaracha," a folk song from the Mexican Revolution, adds modern verses to skewer the corruption of the Communist Party and the sacrifice of young soldiers in war, an obvious reference to the war in Iraq.

The multinational band, augmented by three guest musicians, maximizes the sense of musical discovery by using startling tempo changes, unexpected instrumentation and electronic effects.

Embedded in the arrangements is the distant warbling of suffering spirits, a hypnotic Catholic prayer, an electronic wah-wah enhancing portents of doom.

The cult-hit formula? Editing, pratfalls and almost-dirty jokes

EXTREME TV | Paul Abeyta is serving up something strange — and making it fresh — as the producer of Spike TV's "Most Extreme Elimination Challenge."

It fuses a late-1980s Japanese stunt show with new English dialogue: non sequiturs, pseudo-sexual double entendres and other rudeness and buffoonery. The result is an under-the-radar hit.

"It's sort of like the 'Iron Chef' meets 'Jackass,'" Abeyta said. When people stumble across "MXC," as fans call it, befuddlement is the standard first reaction, Abeyta said.

Who are these Japanese people with goofy Anglo names like "Hugh Grunt" wearing flimsy helmets and shouting things like "I like soup!" before swinging from a rope and slamming face-first into a wall?

They're contestants on "Takeshi's

DOOR NUMBER ONE: A contestant on the Japanese TV show "Takeshi's Castle" hits a wall, and this is before being overdubbed with smirky English dialogue.

Castle," which at the height of the Nintendo craze was a "Fear Factor"-style show featuring live players performing video-game tasks.

They run across a row of suspended rolling logs, slide down a chute and land on a floating pad or run across a ledge as giant pendulums try to knock them on their rears — or spines.

"I couldn't believe what I was seeing," said Abeyta, whose show is in its third season. "These people are killing themselves for a toaster oven or something!"

The "announcers" are Vic Romano and Kenny Blankenship, voiced by Victor Wilson and Christopher Darga, respectively.

The voiceovers come together with the gang of improvising gags as they watch footage assembled by Abeyta. Later, in an adjacent room lined with soundproof foam, the writers line up to record their dialogue. Before them is a giant TV screen with images of the show. On top of the TV is an unopened package of baba ganoush.

Baba ganoush is mentioned in every episode. Why baba ganoush?

New Lease on Life for 'Life'

RE-ANIMATION | Life magazine is being reborn, again.

Time Inc. has shut down Life twice before, once in 1972 and again in 2000. But this time, the publishing company thinks it has found the right formula — distributing the magazine as a weekly supplement in newspapers.

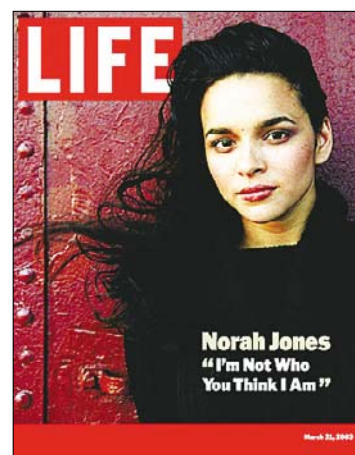

Starting this fall, Life will begin appearing on Fridays in more than 50 major newspapers, including the Los Angeles Times, the New York Daily News and the Miami Herald.

Life magazine has survived as a publisher of occasional "bookazines" — a cross between books and magazines — in the years since its latest shutdown in 2000, including a wide-selling post-Sept. 11 publication called "One Nation."

Andrew Blau, who is overseeing the business side of the magazine, said Time Inc. did some market research and found that there were still high levels of interest in Life magazine's brand among consumers and advertisers.

The idea of publishing Life as a newspaper supplement had been around for some 10 years, but was taken up in earnest about a year ago, Blau said.

Time Inc. has made deals with several major newspaper publishers to carry the Life supplement, including Tribune Co., Knight Ridder and the McClatchy Co.

With an initial circulation of 12 million, Life will be smaller than its two main rivals in the weekend newspaper supplement business. Parade, a unit of Advance Publications, boasts a circulation of 36 million, while Gannett Co.'s USA Weekend has a circulation of 23 million. SETH SUTEL (AP)

NICE GIRLS: "Golly Moses, girls, these glasses of Sprite are wholesomely delicious!"

Good, Clean 'Sex'

SYNDICATION | When Carrie asked Mr. Big if he'd like to come up to her apartment in the "Sex and the City" finale, he answered with a phrase that fans recognized from the very first episode.

His affirmative reply, which contained two extra unprintable syllables, was delivered with a wide grin. When the rerun appears soon on TBS, Big will say, "Absolutely."

Those little instances will pop up hundreds of times when the Emmy-winning HBO series begins its run on TBS Tuesday. It's a landmark moment in television, the first time a pay cable series has been sold in syndication and must be sanitized to meet stricter language and content standards. All along, producers filmed alternate scenes and recorded alternate dialogue, with an eye toward a future syndication sale and because HBO needed a tamer version of the show for some international markets, said Carolyn Strauss, president of HBO original programming. TV Guide said it showed the TBS episodes to several fans of the show and someone who hadn't seen it before and "all agreed that there's still enough sizzle to keep them satisfied." DAVID BAUDER (AP)

ON TV TONIGHT

BIKINIS AND BACKSTABBING

NORTH SHORE (8 p.m., Fox) This Hawaiian cousin to "The O.C." (it even borrows "O.C."s Amanda Righetti) opens with a shot of a girl emerging from a swimming pool, her dripping cleavage shoved into our faces. We learn that this is the bored jailbait daughter of a miserable rich woman who ignores her at the poolside of a posh Hawaiian hotel, which is presided over by brash, handsome Jason Matthews (Kristoffer Polaha). Miss Jailbait spends most of the first episode trying to "hook up" with the handsome young lifeguard Gabriel (Corey Sevier). After he turns her down, she retaliates by accusing him of rape.

"North" exists in an odd dimension where everyone older than 29 has been banished. It's as if Fox and the WB have perfected a kind of programming neutron bomb that eliminates all but the built and the beautiful. HIT ME WITH YOUR BEST SHOT If "American Idol" can search for the next pop star and get great ratings, can NEXT ACTION STAR (10 p.m., NBC) be entertaining as its casting agents look for the next Ah-nold? Only if you consider watching dozens of bad actors burst through a door screaming, "Freeze!" remotely entertaining. EASY MONEY THE CASINO (9 p.m., Fox) chronicles two young investors as they try to restore a Las Vegas betting parlor to its ring-a-ding-ding glory days. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

Jailbait No More

First of all, Mary-Kate and Ashley Olsen are fraternal twins. They are not identical. They just look freakily so, an investigation of which would make a great eighth-grade science project. From top left: In "Full House," the Olsens jointly played Michelle Tanner; in late-'90s sitcom "Two of a Kind," they played twins named Mary-Kate and Ashley; and today, they could be anyone under all that makeup. Anyway, they turned 18 on Sunday. (EXPRESS)

INFANTS
The Baby Told Us It Wants To Be Named 'Amy Jennifer'

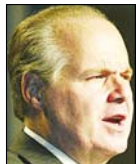

COURTENEY COX and her husband, David Arquette, became parents on Sunday, reported People magazine. The couple have talked openly about their earlier failed attempts to carry a baby to term. Cox, who is just shy of 40, checked into the hospital a week before the baby's due date and was in labor through the night, according to the People Web site. The baby is a girl and has thankfully not yet been named. (EXPRESS)

SPLITS
Another Wife Rushed Out

Conservative radio commentator RUSH LIMBAUGH announced that he and his wife, Marta, are divorcing. The Limbaughs "mutually decided to end their marriage of 10 years" and have "separated pending an amicable resolution," according to a statement released Friday by Limbaugh's publicist. It was the third marriage for both Limbaugh, 53, and his wife, 45, who were wed in 1994 at the Virginia home of U.S. Supreme Court Justice Clarence Thomas. (AP)

An Actor Without a Cause Is a Day Without Sunshine

JOHN C. REILLY, who played a sinister sidekick in the 1994 thriller "The River Wild," returned to the film's location, Galice, Ore., to speak against what he says is a real-life danger: logging. Reilly went Tuesday at the behest of Greenpeace, which is opposed to the U.S. Bureau of Land Management's proposed timber sales in the area. Reilly said he fell in love with the area's Rogue River when he made "The River Wild." (AP)

TO THE EDITOR

IN FRIDAY'S Live Online column, Marc Fisher suggests the "celebratory" applause for Nancy Reagan and President Reagan's coffin was inappropriate. I was on Constitution Avenue, and I applauded. I was celebrating a remarkable life that inspired our nation and affected people around the world. In that context, there is nothing to be sorrowful about.

—BRIAN LONERGAN
Silver Spring, Md.

I THINK THE editorial feel of the front-page article "Capital Salutes Reagan" (June 10) was inappropriate for a hard-news story. The passage "In her husband's death as in his life, she was beside him at every step.... She gazed at it [the coffin], as she had so often gazed at him in life" sounded more like something from a novel than a news piece.

Horoscope | Stella Wilder

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — You will be convincing, but there may still be some who are not convinced. Take the time to talk to them one-on-one.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — You're likely in a different phase, and though you may not have noticed the transition you're sure to win different reactions.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Consult the experts before making any major decisions that will affect others as well as yourself. You're in the big leagues now.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — What you oversee or overhear may be of great importance to you in the time to come — but don't be premature in your planning.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — You have trouble balancing your own needs with the needs of others — particularly if it's up to you to fulfill them all.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Use an imaginative approach to keep your interest intact, and by day's end you'll be acquitting yourself well and attracting attention.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — You can be highly intuitive, and still miss the point — unless you are willing to listen to someone else who knows a thing or two.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Pledge your loyalty to a cause and you'll be taken seriously. Someone will contact you with an important assignment.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — The usual will take on unusual meaning. You must be prepared to make some last-minute adjustments as a result.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — This a good day for pursuing romantic possibilities, but you must be sure that honesty and sincerity are a part of the game.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — You may be unusually restless, eager to get a new foothold and to stake your claim to something that is just being introduced to the fore.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — You may be unusually volatile, overreacting to much that is really unimportant. Keep things in perspective.

Brother Ray

From washingtonpost.com/liveonline

HOWARD KRAMER, curatorial director of the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame and Museum, was online Friday to discuss the musical legacy of Ray Charles.

Where would you rank Ray Charles in the pantheon of popular music?

Right at the top. It's a very crowded top, I know, but he's one of the most revolutionary figures. He redefined music and therefore changed everything that came after, in the manner of Louis Armstrong and Hank Williams and Charlie Parker. He is one of the true giants. The term "genius" is tossed around a lot, but he truly was.

I understand he played 200 nights or more a year. Why did he work at such a pace?

Guys like Ray Charles, that's what they do. They're musicians, they play. They don't sit around the studio waiting to be inspired. They get on the road and play and that's how they learn their craft. Louis Armstrong and Benny Goodman and Pablo Casals and Andre Segovia and Muddy Waters played up to the very end. That's what real musicians do.

I was surprised that he was only 73. When did his career start?

His first recordings were done for a small label called Swingtime in 1949. In 1952 he moved to Atlantic Records, a bigger company which specialized in rhythm and blues. His big break was in 1955, with "I Got A Woman," although he did have hits with some earlier material.

Will the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame be doing anything in his honor? When was he inducted?

We will have a photo exhibit in a few weeks. Ray was inducted in 1986 in the first group of 10 inductees.

Peking Pork Wraps

Serves: 4 – 6

5 Ingredients:

- 1 1/2 cups pineapple juice
- 1/2 cup hoisin sauce
- 1 lb. center cut boneless pork chops
- 1 bag (16-ounces) frozen Stir Fry vegetables
- 6, 8-inch flour tortillas

30 Minutes:

Combine pineapple juice and hoisin sauce. Pour half of mixture into a small sauce pan and bring to a boil. Reduce heat to medium-high and cook sauce at a low boil (simmer) until reduced to 1/4 – 1/2 cup liquid (about 20 minutes). Meanwhile, slice pork into thin 1/4 inch strips. Put in large skillet with rest of pineapple juice mixture. Cook, stirring frequently, 5 minutes. Add vegetables to the skillet, stir, cover and continue to cook until vegetables are crisp-tender, about 8 minutes. Heat tortillas, cover with a damp paper towel and microwave for 30-45 seconds, or according to package directions. Spoon pork and vegetables onto tortillas. Top each mixture with about 2 Tbsp. sauce. Roll up or wrap burrito-style. Serve with any extra sauce.
